

ABSTRACT

160,657

Described are preferred processes for conditioning semiconductor devices with deuterium to improve operating 5 characteristics and decrease depassivation which occurs during the course of device operation. Also described are semiconductor devices which can be prepared by such processes.